Due to its layered calcium carbonated deposit patterns, the valley resembles a golden dragon winding its way through the virgin forest, stone mountains and glaciers. Along the valley are numerous colorful ponds of different sizes and shapes, which are strewn with gold-colored limestone deposit giving a shimmering golden hue to the waters, giving the impressions of a golden dragon surging forth from the forest. Thus it was named ‘Huanglong Valley’ (Yellow Dragon Valley). Huanglong Scenic and Historic Interest Area is famed for its outstanding travertine (calcium carbonate) formations.
